

CAUCASUS

Full-blown roof of Europe with its 5642m peak, Elbrouz is the Caucasian massif's king, and reigns as a master over the numerous summits of this mountain chain separating Northern and Southern Europe. Towards the East, located in the Khok chain, Mount Kazbek (dormant volcano) is the fourth highest summit of Caucasus and the second of highest of Georgia which it marks the frontier with Russia.

Covered with glaciers, thus the nickname "Mountain of ice", its name comes from the village of Kazbegui located in Georgia. After a flight to Moscow, we land in Mineralny Vody, thermal city located in the Caucasus massif. From there, we continue our journey towards Vladikavkaz, capital of North Ossetia. Then, after a transfer to Tmenikau, we join on foot the base camp of Mount Kazbek in the valley of Karmadon. After 4 days of acclimatization and climbs in the altitude camps, we will attempt the summit and join the valley afterwards.

We go in direction of Hathansu, meeting point for Russian highlanders, before climbing up to the Uncle Nick refuge from our base camp. There, we finalize our acclimatization to throw ourselves towards the summit. Once arrived in Seldov, we only have a small ridge left before we reach the top. We made it, and it's fabulous !

Once we're back at the refuge, we'll have a good rest and join the Hathansu camp. Then, we get to the city of Piatigorsk by walking on fantasy pistes in the middle of lush pastures.

ITINERARY

Day 1 Flight Paris - Mineralny Vody - Vladikavkaz

Departure from Paris to Mineralny Vody. Welcoming at the airport followed by a transfer to Vladikavkaz : 215km and around 3h drive.

Diner is planned on route.

Accommodation : Hotel

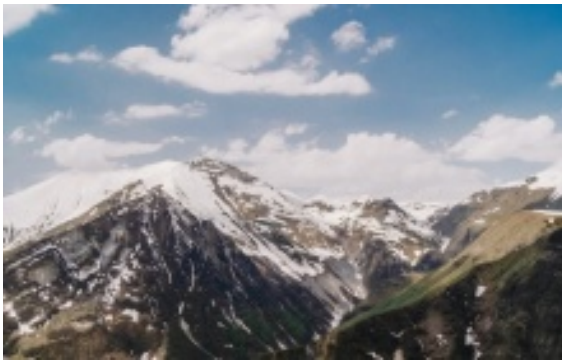

Day 2 Tmenikau - Base camp

We start our day with a 35km transfer from Vladikavkaz to Tmenikau, small village at 1750m high. After passport and permits control, we'll have a traditional Ossetian meal prepared by our guides. From there starts our 12km trek leading us to the base camp in the valley of Karmadon, at 2450m.

Near our camp are two hot springs allowing us to have a nice bath !

Positive difference in altitude : around 700m | Accommodation : Camp

Day 3 Ascent to Camp 1

We start today walking in direction of the Maili glacier and its West ridge. There are a few passages where a fixed rope will help us with our ascent. We'll arrive at the Camp 1 at 3400m high.

Positive difference in altitude : around 1000m | Accommodation : Camp 1

Day 4 Camp 2 at 4150m and Polyakov

Through rocks, stones and snow, the ascent towards Camp 2 at 4150m is difficult. We will take advantage of our afternoon to ascend Polyakov at 4270m to train and acclimatize.

Positive difference in altitude : around 900m | Negative difference in altitude : around 200m | Accommodation : Camp 2

Day 5 Maili Glacier

Acclimatization day which we'll take advantage of to do a few technical revisitions on the Maili glacier (without ascending to the top to avoid spending all of our energy unnecessarily) before returning to Camp 2 to spend the night.

Those who prefer can stay at the camp and rest before the next day's ascent.

Accommodation : Camp

Day 6 Mount Kazbek 5033m

Today is the ascent day of Kazbek at 5033m ! After a fairly gentle beginning through the glacier, slopes are getting steeper right up to the top. We'll admire the amazing view on the Caucasus landscapes surrounding us. On the other side is Georgia and West stands Elbrouz. We did it, and we'll celebrat once we are back at the Camp 2.

Positive difference in altitude : around 900m | Negative difference in altitude : around 900m | Accommodation : Camp 2

📍 Day 7 Spare day

This day can be used in case of base weather on the previous day for the ascent. If the ascent is on this day, we can also cut the very long descent in 2 steps.

Accommodation : camp

📍 Day 8 Return to Vladikavkaz

Descent to Tmenikau and transfer to the hotel in Vladikavkaz to spend a well deserved night.

Negative difference in altitude : around 2400m | Accommodation : hotel

📍 Day 9 Hathansu : base camp of Elbruz

From Vladikavkaz, around 400km (around 6h30 drive) are separating us from Hathansu where is located the base camp of Elbruz. We settle our tents in the middle of the pasture at 2500m high and enjoy the breath taking landscape.

Accommodation : Tent

📍 Day 10 Uncle Nick refuge

Here is the great start : we get to the "Uncle Nick" refuge at 3760m using a good pathway. It will now be our base, surrounded with ice.

Positive difference in altitude : around 1200m | Accommodation : Uncle Nick refuge

📍 Day 11 Acclimatization

On a long walk on a flat terrain, we join an immense glacial plateau names Djikaughenkez and bordered by prominences at the Southeast from where we will have an incredible point of view on the Baksan valley and the central part of the mountain chain which, South, forms the frontier with Georgia.

Positive difference in altitude : around 700m | Negative difference in altitude : around 700m | Accommodation : Uncle Nick refuge

📍 Day 12 Elbruz 5641m

Very early wake up to trek towards the summit on fairly steep slopes. Arrival to Sedloy (5400m) between East and West peaks. We meet with other mountaineers arriving from the Normal Route. We have to put in all of our energy to finish those 200m separating us from the top and finally reach the summit plateau. Here we are, at the top of Europe ! We descend on the same itinerary to the refuge.

Positive difference in altitude : around 1900m | Negative difference in altitude : around 1900m | Accommodation : Refuge

📍 Day 13 Spare day

In case of bad weather on the previous day, we still have the opportunity to attempt reaching the summit on this spare day to guarantee a success !

Accommodation : Refuge

📍 Day 14 Piatigorsk

Descent to Hathansu and transfer to Piatigorsk by the valley of Malka.

Negative difference in altitude : 1200m | Accommodation : Hotel

📍 Day 15 Spare day in Piatigorsk

Sightseeing day in Piatigorsk or, if necessary, this day can be used as a spare day for Elbruz according to conditions.

Departure for France in the night from the airport of Myneralny Vodi 30km away from Piatigorsk.

📍 Day 16 France

Flight from Myneralny Vodi to Moscow and then to Paris. We land late in the morning (depending on the chosen flights). We say goodbye to each other after a wonderful adventure with our heads full of memories.

Changes to travel contract

If you wish to make a change to your booking please contact us in writing; you will be expected to pay any fee which might arise from this change. In the event of unforeseen external events, Montagne Expedition may change some aspects of the travel contract. If any changes are necessary you will be informed as quickly as possible.

Pricing

The prices on our website are updated regularly and all of the prices we advertise are accurate when published. Montagne Expedition reserve the rights to make changes to any of these prices. Before you make a booking we will give you the up-to-date price of your chosen holiday including any supplements, upgrades or additional activities you may have requested. If the number of travellers is fewer than the indicated number of participants on the website, a small group surcharge may be applied. For all of our trips we include details of services, prices and what is/is not included but please be aware that changes to the prices may be necessary in accordance with exchange rates or price changes of various components of the journey.

Contract transfer

If you are unable to travel for any reason with Montagne Expedition, you can transfer your booking to another person in which case our modification conditions apply. Both the transferor and transferee will be jointly and severally liable for payment of the total holiday price and other associated expenses. Some airline carriers treat name changes as cancellations and you may be required to pay for the cost of a new ticket.

Insurance

We strongly recommend that you take out personal travel insurance for your trip with Montagne Expedition as soon as your booking is confirmed. We advise you to purchase a travel insurance policy which covers flight cancellations, luggage loss and emergency health care. Please look carefully at which activities are covered by your insurer and do not forget to bring all necessary documents and information with you (name of the company, name of the contract, insurance policy number, telephone number...)

The mentioned information are only indicative for french citizens. They can be modified. It is thus highly recommended to check with the consulate of your country a few months before your departure.

Mandatory vaccines

Even if there are no mandatory vaccines, make sure to have the vaccines usually recommended in the occidental countries up to date (tetanus, diphtheria, polio, typhoid). Also, hepatitis A and B are recommended.

Weather

The weather can change a lot in a short amount of time. There can be wind and be very cold. The temperature of the air decreases of about 0,8°C every 100m of altitude. In high mountain, thermic variations are very rapid (shadow/sun and day/night). The wind and the humidity of the clothes aggravate considerably the thermic loss. The drop of the atmospheric layer makes the sun even more dangerous due to the rise of the ultraviolet radiation. An adequate equipment will protect you from the violent wind.

Sustainable tourism

We do our best to offer trips subscribed to the principles of responsible and sustainable tourism. Our aim is to allow visitors to discover the many facets of the mountains by taking you off the beaten path and getting you in touch with its nature and residents, while ensuring that your visits do not have a negative effect on its natural environment and people.

- Most of our accommodations are run by locals, thus ensuring that the largest part of the revenue generated through your trip will stay within the region.
- France is known for its exquisite cuisine. The art of cooking and the joy of eating are part of everyday life. Each region has its particular foods and flavors which we would like you to explore and appreciate.
- Water is a precious and rare good. Our team and those travelling with us are thus advised to use it with consideration and avoid excessive water use where possible.
- Please try to recycle your waste whenever possible, even though recycling may not be a well-known concept in all areas.
- Be cautious and respectful when hiking. Make sure to wear suitable footwear and avoid picking flowers, moving stones or lighting fires.
